After being retired from many businesses, all of a small nature and all operated in the state of Maine, Jonathan D. and Elizabeth P. Milligan, better known as Jon and Liz, have decided to make their time and experience available to business, industry and the individual.

Collectively they have over one hundred years of experience in: real estate areas such as management, development, liquidation, evaluation and others; office supplies and business machines and equipment retail, printing, art gallery operation, restaurant business, resort, hotel and motel operation, to name a few.

Both have been active members of many civic, service, fraternal and religious organizations and have worked with small and large groups of persons of all races, colors and nationalities. They have made their home in winters on Montserrat in the West Indies for many years, and travel has been their main hobby and interest. Traveling to see a client anywhere in the world is not a problem.

Having been involved in the world of business for these many years they feel a familiarity with many of the basic values necessary in today's climate. Their knowledge of people, places and things is long-standing. Now their concepts, experience and know-how are being offered to others.

Are you among those to whom this would be a timely service?
